

fraser valley

wineries association

The Fraser Valley wine region is unique, characterized by soil rich with organic elements, a cooler growing season, and ever-changing weather, flowing in from the nearby Pacific coast.

What sets the area apart, however, are the individual stories of the wine-makers themselves. Some influenced by an old world lineage, others by inherent creativity; they are pioneers, like those hundreds of years before them.

The grape and fruit based wines common here cannot be found anywhere else in the world. They are distinct, and a result of many influences—much like BC itself.

This is a place of ideas. A place of new tradition. Above all, it's a place you should visit.
